For more than 11 years the Nonwovens Cooperative Research Center (NCRC) has served the nonwovens and allied industries through fundamental and applied research and an active program of technology transfer and engagement. As director of the center, Dr. Behnam Pourdeyhimi helps to nurture industry-university partnerships to better enable NCRC to develop a unique set of capabilities unmatched anywhere in the world. This world-class research is revolutionizing the textile industry inside and out. The foundation of our success is the partnership between the North Carolina State University and the nonwovens and allied industries.
